Indic Academy's Inter Gurukula-University Center is pleased to announce a Conference on Indigenous Environmentalism exploring Vedic, Buddhist, Jain, Folk, Tribal And Pagan Traditions on 28th March 2020 at Hyderabad. The conference will focus on eco-friendly, environment-sustaining world views and ideologies inherent in Indic and Pagan cultures, texts and traditions and join the global efforts to save our environment by bringing Indic and Pagan traditions for the first time on to same platform.

Broad themes of the Conference:

The environmentalist aspects of all components of the Indic cultural complex namely the Vedic, Folk and Tribal traditions as well as the non-Vedic components such as the Buddhist and the Jain will be dealt with in the conference. A comparative study of all these Indic traditions with the worldwide Pagan traditions will also be made. The broad themes of the conference are:

1. Environmentalist aspects, contemporary ideas and comparative study of such ideas and aspects of different Pagan traditions around the world
2. Environmentalist aspects, contemporary ideas and comparative study of various Vedic, non-Vedic (Buddhist, Jain), Folk and Tribal traditions.
3. Scope for building environmentalist ideas and actions around Vedic, non-Vedic (Buddhist, Jain), Folk, Tribal and Pagan traditions individually and jointly with the contemporary environmentalist ideas and actions around the world.

Dr. Nagaraj Paturi, Director of Inter Gurukula-University Center is curating the conference. Abstracts may be submitted to namaste@indica.org.in by 05th March. Full papers may be submitted by 15th March. The conference is scheduled on 28th March 2020 at Hyderabad.
