

Internship opportunity with the Religion and Conservation Biology Working Group (RCBWG) of the Society for Conservation Biology (SCB)

The RCBWG is the only professional group that leverages science and empirical evidence, to advance partnerships between faith and conservation aimed at conserving the Earth's biological diversity. The RCBWG is part of the Society for Conservation Biology, the largest professional organization dedicated to the scientific study and practice of biodiversity conservation.

The RCBWG is currently looking for an intern for 2016. The successful candidate will work closely with Dr. Fabrizio Frascaroli, Ms. Dekila Chungyalpa, and Dr. Giulia Sajeve, to promote the RCBWG as the leading global hub facilitating cooperation between faith groups and conservationists. The tasks will include activity on social media, editing responsibilities of a periodic newsletter, organization of conference sessions, and collaboration to scientific articles. The role will offer a privileged insight into the science-practice-policy interface, and extraordinary networking opportunities. High proficiency in English and a positive open-minded approach are the only formal requirements.

If you are interested, do not hesitate to get in contact, sending a biosketch (max. half a page) and letter of motivation (max. one page) to Dr. Giulia Sajeve (giusajeve@gmail.com). We will collect applications until the right candidate will have been identified.
